SATURDAY'S SINNERS

Annie Crawford Makes Another Last Appearance Before the Judge.

QUOTA SENT FROM GOAT ALLEY

James Simmons Sang to a Policeman and Was Fined.

POLICE COURT PICTURES

Five females occupied the front seats in Judge Scott's dock this morning, the only white one in the party being Annie Crawford, who has been one of the "regulars" for several years. Annie is a little woman who has seen better days, and were it not for her appetite for strong drink she would be seeing good days now. But she loves liquor better than she does living a life of sobriety and figuring in good society, and the consequence is that she spends most of her time on the farm.

Despite her bad habits, she seldom fails to present a neat appearance, and this morning she was dressed in a neat linen suit. Her appearance indicated that she had not been satisfied with non-intoxicating beverages, and although she has been a regular visitor for several years at almost regular intervals, she had not been in the toils for several months.

"I guess I'm guilty of disorderly conduct," she answered, "but I hope your honor will be merciful to me this morning. It's been six months since I was here last, and last Tuesday I came in from Chevy Chase, where I was in service. When I called on a friend last night she treated to a can of beer, and then I treated. I drank more than I intended to drink, and, of course, when a woman drinks too much she can't tell just what she might say. If you let me go this morning I'll return to Chevy Chase." "Take her bonds to that effect," said the clerk, "and when she gets out at Chevy Chase she can't get any liquor."

Counsel, but No Collateral. Alice Williams, Ollie Brown and Ella Fisher, three of the colored women, had een arrested in Goat alley last night, and although they had not been able to leave collateral they had counsel to defend them. Disturbing the quiet of the alley was the charge against the trio, and when arraignthe club, Mr. Benjamin F. Peters, called ed there were three pleas of "not guilty" entered.

"These women were in the alley last night engaged in a cussing match," Police-man Auldridge told the court, "and there was a cloud of profanity in the alley calculated to cause some trouble."
"And did these women use the bad language?"

"I can't say that they did," the officer responded, "because there were so many voices, but they were in the disorderly crowd. "And is that all you know about the trouble?" asked counsel. "That's enough," was the policeman's

"Judge, your honor," said a colored resident of the alley, "Ella and Alice had some trouble about a man, and one of them struck the other on the head with a stick. "You'd thought there was a riot in the "You'd thought there was a riot in the alley last night if you had been there," said a colored man, "for these women certainly did raise a fog there."

The women denied the charge against them, and Alice Williams was asked by coursel for the other women if she had ever been locked up, and her response was "Yes"."

Yes."
"Haven't you been in the work house many times?"
"Well, I guess I—"

"But can't you tell the truth if you ave?" the court interrupted. "Certainly, I can."

Ollie Brown was fined $5 or fifteen days, and her friends were discharged.

The Judge Liked His Honesty. In the dock was a young man the color of whose face, as well as his nervous condition, made it apparent that he had been indulging in something stronger than water. He was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct in South Washington, and his answer was, "I guess I am guilty."

"Enter up a fine of five dollars." The man lingered about the rail as if he The man lingered about the rail as if he wanted to say something, and when asked why he loitered there, he said he had a huckster's badge which he wanted to leave for his friend.

"What was the trouble with you last night?" the court asked.

"I was drunk" he apswered "and there's

"I was drunk," he answered, "and there's no use in my saying not guilty when I may have cursed." "Well, I admire your frankness," said the judge, "and I'm going to reduce the fine to three dollars." "Thank your honor for your kindness," said the prisoner, "for I certainly do appreciate what you have done."

Another Case of Honesty. George Honesty, a colored man, who was standing on 25th street near his own home, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct. "There was a crowd on the street," said Policeman Van Horn, "and they were whooping and laughing."

"There's no objection to laughing that I know of," remarked the court. "What time was all this?" "About half-past nine," the officer answered. "It was only five minutes after So'clock," said the colored man, "and I wasn't disorderly."

"Young man," said Judge Scott, "when you stand on the street you should not make any loud noises, but this case is not serious, and I'm going to take your peronal bonds."
Policeman Stewart, the colored officer of No. 8, threw his club at a fugitive last night and then got into an argument with James Simmons. The latter thought the former was too inquisitive when he looked in a house where he (Simmons) was visiting. "Who you looking at?" the policeman charged Simmons asked him, and he responded "you."

Then Simmons sang "Sweet Bye and Bye," and when he had finished the hymn he said to the officer: "Go on away from "Then," said the officer, "I collared James made a statement in his own defense, in which he denied the charge.

According to his statement he was seated on a front porch with friends, and the words passed between the officer and himself resulted from the officer's interference

Met a Special Policeman. Policeman Estes said he found Frances Winston, colored, swearing like a trooper in Cox's alley yesterday. Frances said she met Special Policeman Alexander Allen, who had a bucket of heer and he got mad because she would not go in his house with him, and blew his whistle.

"His conduct," argued Lawyer Peyton, "was enough to make her swear. She is a hard working woman, and I think she has been sufficiently punished."
Allen denied that he had anything to any to the woman.

"This case, like many others," the judge said, "has two sides, and shows that the man clothed with authority is not without some taint."

Frances was released on her personal bonds. "Last night he was beastly drunk," said

Policeman Evans. He was talking about a colored man named Shepherd Goodall. "And," the officer added, "he is to be seen sleeping about Xander's saloon and in the lumber yard." "He works very little," said another offi-"and what money he earns he spends or whisky."

His nervous condition, he said, was the result of a pain in his stomach, and he de-ciered he had only taken one drink last

"Must have been a big one," remarked the court. "You may have fifteen days to straighten up."

RAPID NEWSPAPER DELIVERY.

Interesting Decision on the Subject in the Police Court. George Haynes, the newsdealer, was before the court on complaint of Policeman Miller on a charge of fast driving on Pennsylvania avenue about two weeks ago. "He was going as fast again as a cable car," said the officer. "Then," said Lawyer Shillington, "you want the court to understand that he was driving at the rate of about eighteen miles an hour?"

"No, sir; I think he was driving at the rate of about nine miles an hour." "But he was going faster than a cable car?" "Most assuredly." At the time of the alleged violation the officer said he did not know the defendant, but was told who he was by a newspaper attached to a World wagon. The defendant made a denial of the charge against him. He said, however, that he made an effort to deliver his papers on ime, and did not usually lose much time. There was one witness on each side, and the judge said he had some doubt about the case. In this city, the judge said, there is no excuse for fast driving, for the streets are wider and treets are wider and better paved than are the streets in any other city.

Referring to the newspaper business, the judge said there seemed to be some reason why there should be no delay in their delivery. This feet is recognized in their deivery. This fact is recognized everywhere, and there are even fast railroad trains especially for them.
"There are some cases," said the court, "in which fast driving might be necessary in cases of emergency-fire and in the newspaper business; but of course the law must not be violated, and in cases of this kind the proof must be clear and convinc-ing. This case is dismissed."

"I'll have him in here again inside of two days," was the parting shot of the police-man.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Amorita" at the Grand.-The regular season of the Grand Opera House will comnence Monday evening, August 24. The Emma R. Steiner Gaiety Opera Company has been engaged for the opening attraction for a season of three weeks. The company is direct from New York and under the personal direction of Miss Emma R. Steiner. The first opera produced by the Steiner Opera Company will be a revival of Ozibulka's "Amorita," as played at the New York Casino 100 nights. The company comprises many artists, headed by Miss Carrie Roma, the soprano. Miss Clara Thropp is cast for the part of Angelo in 'Amorita." The parts of Canstrucci and Fra Bombardo will be played by Mr. Frank David and Mr. Francis Gaillard, respectively. Madam Alice Gaillard will play the part of Perpetna. She is an old favorite and was last seen here with the Camille D'Arville Company. Miss Florence Handy, who was with the "American Girl" Company last season, will introduce a singing specialty in the scene of the slave dance in "Amorita." Miss Winna Rogers and Miss Jeannette Dufford will each do a solo dance in the third act. John C. Havens, formerly with the Bostonians, has an exeptionally strong tenor voice, and his part of Sparicani in "Amorita" will give him ample opportunity to display it to the best advantage. Mr. M. L. Alsop, who has long been identified with Chas. Frohman's companies, is cast for the part of the ambassador from Morocco. The stage will be under the management of Mr. Frank Thropp, and his long experience as a stage manager assures a smooth performance. The specially selected orchestra of twenty musicians will be under the direction of

Mr. Downing's Company Rehearsing .- Mr Robert Downing and his newly organized company are rehearsing in this city, preparing two new plays for the opening of the theatrical season for the fall and winter at the National Theater, September 14. While the rehearsals are going on here two of the most eminent scenic artists in New York city are painting the scenery for the plays—Harley Merry and Lafayette Seaney. The latter is engaged on "In Search of Happiness," the former on "Putnam, a Son of the Revolution."

New White Crook at the Lyceum. Rush's New White Crook Company will be at the Lyceum next week. The man-ager has been investing heavily recently in costumes, stage equipments, nov-el illuminations, and above all, talent. The company he presents next week is crowded with noted comedians, sparkling actresses, star specialties and a bewitching array of beautiful girls, who can act, sing and dance. The specialty part of the bill serves to introduce the following stars: Ned Mon-roe and Fern Melrose, comedy sketch team, in a new and up-to-date act; the singing and dancing soubrettes, Agnes Behler and Anna Yale; Dixon and Lang, character comedians and vocalists, in an original idea of their own; Williams and Edwards in feats on the Mexican ladders, and Colby and Dewitt, the organ grinder and the "monk." Two new and spicy burlesques open and close the performance, entitled "Columbia's Reception" and "The White Crooks Near Gay New York." All of the characters are in the hands of vivacious comediernes, funny comedians, sprightly. comediennes, funny comedians, sprightly dancers and accomplished vocalists.

The Bijov.-Saturday evening, August 29, The Bijou.—Saturday evening, August 29, is the date set for the opening of the rejuvenated Bijou Theater, under the management of Mr. Robt. M. Whitesell. Those who have witnessed the progress of repairs say that he is making the Bijou worthy of its name, one of the coziest and handsomest little play-houses in town. The opening attraction will be Daniel Sully in "The Millionaire," a remarkable one considering the prices. Mr. Sully has always played at standard rates throughout the country, where he is a popular favorite in country, where he is a popular favorite in his peculiar line of character delineation, and it was only through friendship for Manager Whitesell that he consented to start the Bijou off with a boom. His play is a the Bijou off with a boom. His play is a well-tried and popular one, from the pen of Leander Richardson, editor of the New York Dramatic News, and will prove entertaining. Mr. Whitesell will make another innovation in the matter of giving matinees every day, to which the ladies and children are especially invited.

Columbia Musical Parlors.-A fairly good sized crowd has been present each night during the past week at the Musical Parlors of the Columbia Phonograph Com-pany to listen to the selections on the graphophones, many of which are especially meritorious. The kinetoscopes, too, contributed their share of interesting scenes, and in consequence each machine was well patronized. Among the good things heard on the graphophones are "The Brownies' Dance," a banjo duet by Messrs. Cullen & Collins; "Mayourneen," which once brought fame and fortune to Chauncey Olcott; "Casey at the Bat," which does not seem to have lost any of its old time mirthfulness; "Once Again," "Three Old Sports," and "Oh, Uncle John," three comic songs which never fall to produce long, hearty laughter, and Col. Robert Ingersoll at the tomb of Napoleon. The kinetoscopes' two greatest drawing cards are entitled "A Blacksmith Shop," and "The Pickaninny Dance." A nickel deposited in the slot permits the visitor to enjoy any one of the above mentioned selections.

Mr. Weaver Doesn't Want It.

The presidency of the Metropolitan railroad still remains vacant, and the board of directors of the road are looking for some good person to place at the head of the corporation. The name of Mr. Robert D. Weaver, a well-known resident of Georgetown, and a member of the board of directors of the road, has been mentioned for the place. Mr. Weaver this morning stated to a Star reporter that the use of his name was unauthorized. He said that for variors reasons he did not want the "The board is looking for a man," s "and we hope soon to be able to find one."

EXCURSIONS.

The Christian Endeavor Chorus.-An enjoyable river trip was made last night by a number of the members of the Christian Endeavor Convention Chorus in conjunction with the Mount Vernon Church choir. Both bodies of singers have been in active rehearsal for the event, and those who joined with them in their excursion to Marshall Hall last night had the pleasure of listening to several of the songs that became so familiar in the early days of July. Mr. Page Zimmerman of the Mount Vernon choir acted as conductor of the music. In the cabin of the Macalester, both going and returning, accompanied by the little folding organ introduced here by Mr. Bilhorn, one of the musical directors of the convention, the excursionists sang heartly the songs that rang out in the Attractions at River View.—The River View season is new rapidly drawing to a close, but the attendance there keeps up and thousands visit the resort every week. In order to amuse the large throngs that visit the View Sunday Capt. E. S. Randall has arranged for a big double attraction for tomorrow. The services of Prof. J. H. Reynolds, the well-known aeronaut, have been secured and he will make an asceneen secured and he will make an ascen sich in his ninety-foet balloon. While in mid-air he will hang by his toes and do other interesting and marvelous feats. When 5,000 feet above the earth's surface, he will perform the surface, he will perform on the trapeze bar and will make the descent, head downward, in a parachute. If the parachute goes over the parachute. If the parachute goes over the river the professor will make a 100-foot dive into the water. In addition to this, both Mile. Grace and Prof. Smith will coast the chute for the last time on a bicycle. The steamer Pentz will leave her wharf at 11 a.m. and 2:45 and 6:15 p.m., returning at 1, 5, 7:30 and 3:30 p.m. Tickets for the round trip will be 25 cents.

Piney Point,-Special tickets for Piney Point Hotel will be sold by Wash B. Williams for use tonight on the Arrowsmith. The steamer will leave this evening at clock, returning Sunday and arriving in the city before the cars stop running. Fare, including transportation both ways, meals and room at the hotel, will be sold for $2.50.

John T. Syken Goen to Sleep With the Gas Turned On.

Mr. John T. Sykes, about twenty-five years old, and a student in dentistry at Columbian University, had a narrow escape from death last night at the home of Dr. H. H. Parcher, No. 806 I street northwest. Mr. Sykes has been temporarily living at the residence in the absence of Dr. Parcher, who he has been assisting in mechanical dentistry. Shortly after 6 o'clock last night Mr. John Bray, who resides next door to the Parchers, noticed a strong smell of He investigated, and found the gas came from the room occupied by Sykes. The apartment door was locked and all the windows tightly closed. Officer Hooper was called, and he and Mr. Bray forced an entrance. The room was filled with gas, which was pouring from an open jet, and the nearly unconscious body of Sykes, clad in his night robe, was found on the bed. Dr. Barry was called in, and as restora-tives seemed to afford no relief, the Emergency Hospital ambulance was called. When Sykes, who had meantime gotten better, learned that he was to be taken to the hospital, he made resistance and had to be forcibly placed in the vehicle. He was soon pronounced out of danger. Sykes denied that he had attempted suicide.

Inflammation, pain, swelling and redness; later pus or matter forms, breaks or is opened, the plug omes out and the pore is once more free. There are thousands of these pores in the face alone, any one of which is liable to become clogged

What Cures Pimples?

The only reliable preventive and cure, when not by neglect or disease.

Cuticura Soap.

It contains a mild proportion of CUTICURA, the great skin cure, which enables it to dissolve the ebaceous or oily matter as it forms at the mouth of the pores.

This is the secret of its wonderful success. It stimulates the sluggish glands and tubes to healthy activity, reduces inflammation, soothes and stores the skin to its original purity. For bad complexion, redness, roughness, yellow oily, mothy skin, red, rough hands and shapeless nails, dry, thin and falling hair, scaly and irritated scalps and simple baby blemishes it is wonderful. Sale greater than the combined sales of all other skin and complexion scaps. Sold throughout the world. Price, 25c. POT-TER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., Sole Props., Boston, Mass.
